くるくるわんこ

FOR TOUR PARTNERS
KABUKICHO, SHINJUKU

Japan's traditional food culture, in a brand-new way.

Small bowls of soba glide past on a revolving lane. Guests take on the wanko soba challenge: how many bowls can you eat? Time, group size and rules are yours to set.

Traditional food culture

A hands-on taste of wanko soba, unique to Japan.

A new way to take it on

Grab bowls off the lane.
Or go as a team relay.

Made for photos

Flowing bowls, growing stacks.
Ready to share.

How it works

01 Welcome & briefing

English-speaking staff explain how it works.

02 Take on the lane

Grab bowls as they pass and see how many you can eat.
Groups set their own time, size and rules.

03 Rewards by bowl count

100+ bowls earns an original patch, 200+ a gold patch, 300+ a gold medal.
Bitter “penalty” tea for whoever eats the fewest is optional.

Ways to fit it in

A stop on a food tour

An easy stop on a Kabukicho walking route.

Lunch on a half-day tour

Lunch and a break, all you can eat.

Groups & private buyouts

Your rules. Team relays welcome.
